

Looking for Interns at the Retreat Farm and Learning Center in SW New Mexico

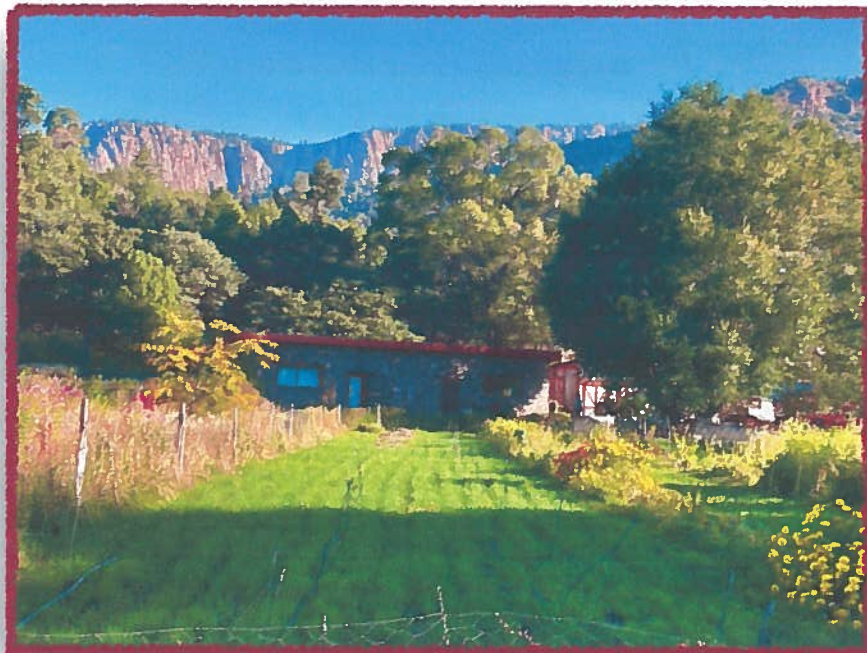

We invite you to share our communal lifestyle for two weeks (or more) and participate in our agricultural and ongoing projects.

Contribute and/or learn skills:

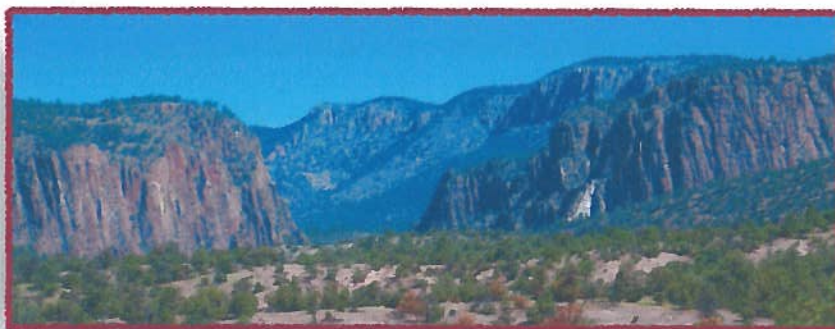

- Gardening on a 2 acre organic farm
- Food preservation
- Carpentry/Building - presently an octagonal solar structure
- Off-grid alternative power system
- Various tasks running a homestead

What we provide:

- Our volunteers join us for daily homemade organic meals
- Camp in our forested campground by the river
- Have access 24/7 to our main passive solar house with great views of the surrounding cliffs

The Retreat is run with a truly unique spirit of cooperation by a group of people who believe in living life to the fullest. The residents practice an intentional way of life that is geared towards integrating mindful practices into many ordinary activities. We invite you to share in these daily rhythms, and experience for yourself how attentiveness to everything you do opens the door to a progressively deepening sense of satisfaction and fulfillment.

Where we are: At 6000 feet in the midst of the Gila National Forest, we are remote! The environment is rich in natural beauty, including dark sky nights and a natural quiet that is un-matched. This region of rugged desert mountains has clear skies, deep canyons, enchanting woods and majestic sculpted cliffs, offering seclusion, peace and a presence that bring internal renewal. Due to our remote locale, interns need to drive or get a ride to the farm.

To apply: go to <https://teachingsofvalue.org/>. Go to the Take Part section, scroll down to Internships, then choose Retreat internships, fill out the questionnaire.
